Institute first on BF grounds

The Presbyterian Collegiate Institute was the first educational institution erected on the site between Institute and Erie where Benjamin Franklin Ir High School stands today

New Central Building burned on December 28, 1939 It took firemen about eight hours to extinguish the blaze

The ground where Benjamin Franklin Junior High School stands has been occupied by various educational institutions since 1860.

In 1860, the land was sold to the Valparaiso Collegiate Institute, a Presbyterian organization. This organization erected the first building, the Presbyterian Collegiate Institute. In 1861, when the Valparaiso College Institute opened its doors, Rev. S. C. Logan, pastor of the Presbyterian church, was principal; and H. A. Newell, studying for the ministry, was his assistant.

The college declined, and in 1869, the property was sold to the School City of Valparaiso. A structure similar to the one on the south lot was built some distance to the north. These buildings were connected by a narrower three story structure. The upper floor housed the high school, while the first and second stories provided twelve rooms for grade children. All other school houses in the town were closed, except one building near the Mica factory, then the Woolen Mills. This was thought to be too far from the new building for the pupils to attend.

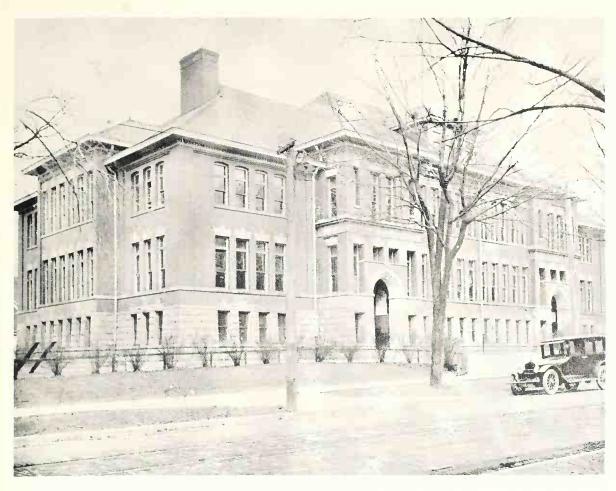

William Hail Banta was selected as superintendent of the consolidated schools of Valparaiso. James Mc-Fetrich was principal of the high school.

In 1895, after Superintendent Banta resigned, the trustees selected C. H. Wood of New Harmony, Indiana, as his successor.

At the beginning of the superintendency of A. A. Hughart, in 1903, the old building was condemned and torn down. The entire high school was installed in cramped quarters above what was then the post office. The two stone slabs, commemorating those active in providing the first consolidated public school in Porter county, were taken from the 1870 building and set in the walls of the two entrances of the new structure.

After Mr. Hughart removed to Coffeeville, Kansas, in 1912, Eugene Skinkle became superintendent. He died in office in 1915 and C. W. Boucher assumed the superintendency in September, 1915.

According to the January 13, 1939 issue of the Valpost: "On Wednesday evening December 28, 1939 the Central School Building was destroyed by fire. Defective wiring in an upper west room is believed to be the cause of the disaster. The alarm was turned in about eight o'clock and it took Valparaiso, Gary, and Michigan City firemen until about four a.m. to extinguish the blaze. . . . The School City will receive a total of $85.625.90. $81,355.90 is for the loss on the building, and the remaining $4,270 on the contents of the building."

After the Old Central was torn down in 1903, the New Central served as the high school until 1927 when Valparaiso High School was built

Today, Benjamin Franklin Junior High School stands on the same site which 105 years ago was occupied by the Valparaiso Collegiate Institute

According to the Vidette Messenger of September 2, 1927, Valparaiso High School was dedicated at 2:30 Thursday afternoon on September 1, 1927. Mayor Spooner was on the program to accept the new building on behalf of the civil city from President W. J. Morris, of the board of education. The architects of the new high school were Hamilton, Fellows, and Wilkinson of Chicago.

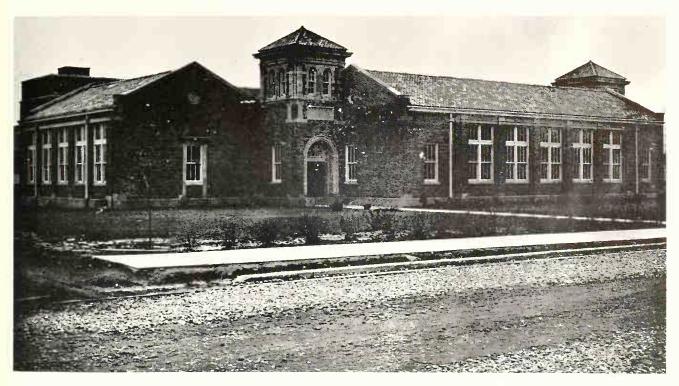

According to the Valenian of 1939: "The Valparaiso High School was erected in 1927 and is one of the finest buildings in the state. Its equipment and laboratories are modern in every respect. This institution is maintained in a most excellent way, and its beauty has been enhanced by extensive landscaping of the grounds. To the rear of the school building is Boucher gymnasium, large and well built, which also serves as an auditorium for the high school."

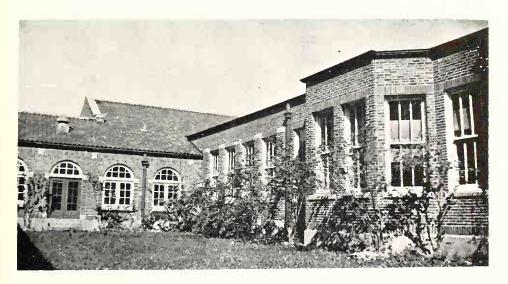

The breezeway as seen in the early history of the school Today evergreens taller than the school fill the interior and the white railing is no longer there.

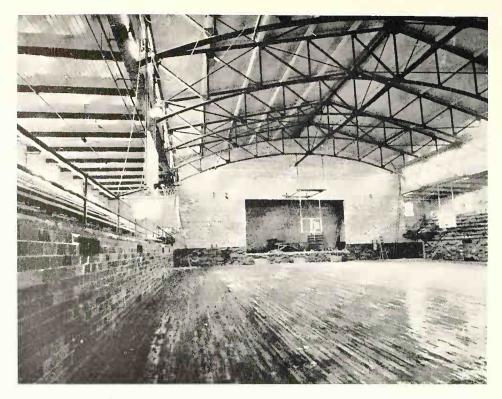

The dedication plaque to Chauncey W. Boucher appears on the east side of the building next to the south entrance. Most students would not recognize it since a large evergreen presently hides it from view.

Gym dedicated to C. W. Boucher

In the fall of 1965 a campletely new termite proof gym flaor and a new mercury vapor lighting system was installed in Boucher Gym—The previous floor served 37 years

Valparaiso High School's gymnasium, named in honor of Chauncey Watson Boucher, was dedicated to civic effort on November 28, 1927. Mr. Boucher introduced the speakers: Mr. Despard, president of the Valparaiso Gymnasium Association; Mr. Morris, president of the Valparaiso Board of Education; and Mr. Sisson, a community leader. The men spoke of the good the gym would do the people of Valparaiso and future generations.

The opening of the gymnasium came in December when the "Bounding Brownies" met and beat LaPorte 27-19.

According to the Vidette Messenger of November 28, 1927, the gymnasium was built through the purchase of mortgage bonds by the public. The cost of the gymnasium was $100,000

In 1934 the students of VHS "tethered" their horseless carriages on the south side of the gym—The area has since been blacktopped, and is today used for teacher's parking

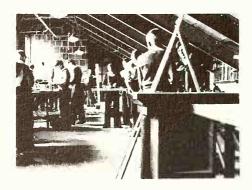

The northeast carner of the gym has changed little since 1934 except far the addition of roll-away bleachers on the floor

Mr Chauncey Boucher was superintendent of the Valparaiso Schools from 1915 to 1928. The gymnasium was dedicated in his honor in 1927.

Classrooms and equipment improve

In 1928, the shop classes met in a small room under the bleachers in the gym

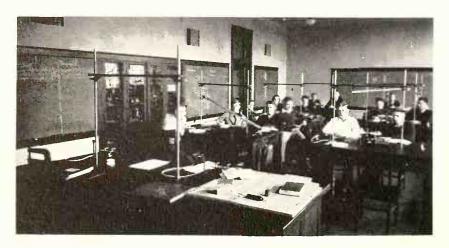

In the thirty-nine year history of VHS in its present location, there have been only a few changes in the interior. This year's remodeling of the courtyard into new administrative offices, the addition of the south wing in 1957, and the remodeling of the chemistry and physics rooms are the only major changes. New flourescent lights have been installed in almost all classrooms, and the main floor halls have been tiled. Here, as well as other places in the school, new equipment has been installed to replace that which was outdated. All in all these few changes have helped to improve the facilities of VHS.

Chemistry students now have the advantages provided by the modern equipment and lab tables not present in the chemistry room of 1928

The modern flourescent lights and the over-flowing bookshelves are the only noticeable changes in the VHS library since 1928. Note that the same tables and chairs are in use today.

The physics lab as seen in 1928 was remodeled and new equipment installed in the summer of 1963

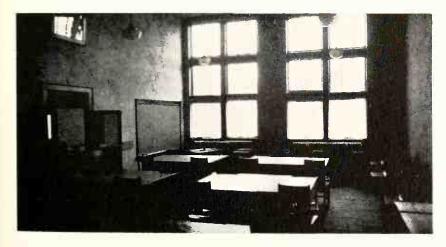

The cooking room as it appeared in 1928 Changes in the cooking lab are certainly noticeable

In 1928 Mr Homer Jesse conducted the school's affairs from this office located near the north entrance to VHS. This year, 1966, Mr Telle has a complete new office in the center of the building.

Except for new tile, the south hall of VHS has changed little since 1928.

New curtains, bright paint, and modern sewing machines are the few changes in the home economics sewing room since 1928. Note triple-view mirror is still in use.

VHS matures

The brick exterior of VHS has darkened with age, but the building still holds an aura of dignity. Spanish influence is evident in the arched windows, tile roofing and the brick motif of the building. Ivy no longer clings to the aged brick walls, but the small pines, once so insignificant, now tower above the walkways. Many trees have been cut down to make room for additions, as a result of an increasing enrollment. New sidewalks have been added, and because biology is now taught in the junior high schools, the greenhouse is no longer used.

The south tower of VHS stands unchanged since the construction of the school in 1927. The space in the tower is today used for storage.

The evergreen trees shown here have grown and today block this view looking northward through the breezeway

The breezeway and greenhouse are seen before the new addition to the school in 1957

Our school colors — Green and White

Mr Homer Jesse, junior high and high school principal for about 38 years, is responsible for Valparaiso High School's colors — GREEN and WHITE!

Coach Ralph Powell is responsible for Valparaiso High School's nickname—VIKINGS

At the annual Valenian-Valpost Banquet in May, 1962 Mr. Jesse was asked to speak on our school colors. According to a special issue of the Valpost on May 1, 1962, "basketball's arrival in Valparaiso demanded that the school have some color to distinguish it from other teams. Maroon and white were the colors adopted. The first competitive game, back around 1912, drew a crowd of three. Among the spectators was Mrs. Homer lesse.

"Back in the early days basketball was unpopular and little talked of. The 1912-13 season was even canceled by the superintendent of schools. However, with the backing of the game by mothers (the boy's fathers took little interest) and the school board (who opposed the superintendent), basketball gained ground.

"In 1914, the school board rented an abandoned "little white church" and used it for gym. Dribbling wasn't in the rules so floor condition didn't matter. Of the few gyms of the time, some had pillars in the middle of the floor. To accomodate the growing crowds, the boys built a bench along one side and one end of the court.

"Referees were scarce, so coaches often refereed half a game each. But the major need of Valpo during these times was a team uniform. (Even though the school colors were suppose to be Maroon and White) they had so many different outfits, it looked like a moving quilt.

"Mr Jesse explained that he was delegated to go to Chicago and find some type of inexpensive uniform. In a Chicago shop he located a custom made team outfit rejected by a YMCA team because the side seams were too wide. 'They were beautiful,' exclaimed Mr. Jesse, 'and I was offered a special price if I would take them.' The suits were of the finest flannels and wool. But, he explained to the clerk, they were the wrong color. The clerk again cut the price and Mr. lesse was sold. He took them home to see what the boys would say.

"They were crazy about them even though the color was wrong. The crowds came to see the team play in their new uniforms (10¢ gate in 1917) not knowing about the color change. When the team came out, everyone gasped with pride, but ended Mr. Jesse, 'No one ever mentioned anything about the change of color to GREEN AND WHITE!""

When Coach Ralph Powell became coach of both football and basketball at Valparaiso High School in 1929, the football team had no nickname, but the basketball teams were known as the "Bounding Brownies" after the previous coach, Joe Brown. Coach Powell and his football boys chose the name Vikings for their 1929 football team. Since then all athletic teams have been known as Vikings.

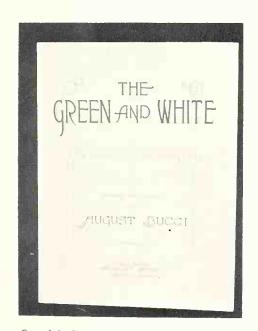

Later, the Viking head was designed for a school flag. The design was then recopied for the class rings.

Bucci responsible for school song

August Bucci wrote our school song while a teacher here in the early 1930's.

The first school song written in 1930 was "The Fighting Vikes" by Harry Wark and his collaborater, James Perry. Mr. Wark later composed "Hail Vikings." But neither of the songs ever reached the prominence of our present school song, "The Green and White." According to the Valpost of May 1, 1962, the composer, Mr. August Bucci, was a graduate of Valparaiso University where he wrote the music to V.U.'s "On to Victory." After graduating from V.U. he came to VHS as a band instructor. Because of his known abilities he was asked by many to compose a school song for the Vikes. He did just that; he wrote song and music for "Green and White." A career with much success in future's hold came to a tragic end on May 5, 1935. August Bucci had gone to Evansville for the State band contest. He was elected president of the Band and Orchestra Association. Coming from Evansville that night, he was killed in a car accident near Boswell, Indiana. Today "The Green and White" remains our school song in his honor.

One of the first copies of "The Green and White" was published in 1930 by Mr. August Bucci.

The Green and White The Valparaiso High School Victory Song

Oh! Green and White arise to glory, to summits of envied

Fight on ev'ry field and never yield exalting your honored

Vikings marching on to vict'ry with courage and pluck and

Fight! Fight! Green and White now win the day,

Then on to vict'ry Valpo, On!

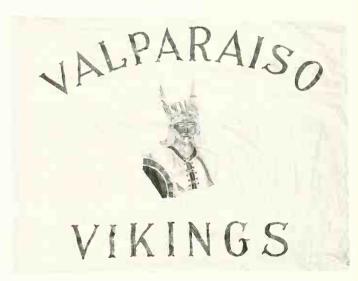

Instilling pride in our school

The school seal, originally suggested and designed by Mr. Roy E. Brown and rendered into final design by staff artist at Herff-Jones of Indianapolis in 1964, symbolizes the ideals of Valparaiso High School. In the seal is an escutcheon crested with the lamp of learning implying eternal vigilance to keep the light. Emblazoned on the dexter quarters of the escutcheon are the open book of learning and a flaming torch. The open book recognizes that the doors at VHS are never closed to learning. The torch symbolizes the zeal for freedom by responsible citizens. The sinister side contains the Viking-V adopted in 1955 to symbolize our sports nick-name. It is identified with all phases of our school that project school spirit. Laurel leaves on the left of the escutcheon stand for achievement; strength is shown by oak leaves on the right. On the banner under the escutcheon appears our motto, "Adornate futura" — to ennoble the future, the goal of learning. The date on the seal, 1874, is the year the first official class graduated from Valparaiso High School.

The original design of the school flag appears very similar to the present day flag

According to the first issue of the Valpost on November 7, 1930, "George Baker walked away with all of the honors and a year's subscription to the school newspaper, Tuesday evening, October 28, 1930. 'Valpost' submitted by this Junior in the Valparaiso High School was chosen as the name for the recent newspaper. A contest for the purpose of finding a nameforthis paper was culminated on the evening of October 28 when the names were drawn by the committee composed of Mrs. VanHooser, Miss McGillicuddy, Mr. Pauley, chairman; Mr. Schenck, Myra A'Neals, senior representative, and Pauline Ruge, freshman representative. Philip Getzinger, junior, and Harry Johnson, sophomore, were unable to be present at the drawing. All of the names chosen by the various students were read to the committee of which five were selected and voted on. Five of the votes were cast for 'Valpost' chosen by George Baker, so the prize of a year's subscription was awarded immediately. The rules of the contest were announced in every assembly several days before the drawing by various members of the newspaper staff, thus giving each student a chance to win the prize. Many clever and original titles were submitted among which the 'Valpost' seemed the most suitable."

New additions to VHS

According to the 1939 Valenian, on September 30, 1938 Valparaiso High School's football field was dedicated when the Vikings met Warsaw in its first home game of the season. Two thousand people witnessed the dedication on the lighted field. Mr. Julian, superintendent; Mr. Jesse, principal; Mr. Tilton, president of the school board; and Mr. Fleishbein, representative for the mayor, dedicated the field over the loud speaking system. The band, in colorful green and white uniforms, played and marched up and down the field. Because of this improvement, football, for the first time, was a self-supporting sport at VHS.

The equipment consisted of eight sixty-foot poles on which were constructed at a cost of three thousand dollars, forty-eight lights. This seventy-two thousand watt system was installed by Van Ness and Company. Included in the lighting system was a public address which extended into the gym. This PA system, which could be operated from the gymnasium or the field, was presented by Mr. Mandel Lowenstine to the high school before the night of dedication.

In September, 1957, ten new class rooms, a kitchen, and a cafeteria which seats 160 were added to Valparaiso High School. Mr. Thomas Roberts had supervision of the construction. According to Mr. Roberts, the only problem confronted by the construction was how to get two classrooms in the basement because of the regulation that classrooms cannot be built under ground level. This was solved by putting in a retaining wall and regulation size windows. The architect of this idea and also the new addition was Warren Holmes from Lansing, Michigan. The general contractor was Larson Danielson from LaPorte, electric contractor — Casbon Electric, plumbing contractor — Valparaiso Plumbing.

Diversified activities through the years

VHS has seen the passing of many generations. Students who once practiced air raid drills or walked the hall of VHS years ago are there no more. But the building remains. The study hall still contains the ornamented desks that hundreds of students have studied in. The school no longer echoes with the laughter of high school girls with bobby socks and long skirts but the memories are there. Many students have sat in the lecture room, puzzled over a physics assignment in study hall, or hurried through the halls between classes. And even today, VHS is full of life — students learning the knowledge that previous generations have learned in addition to new knowledge brought about by our changing world.

Through the years the extra-curricular activities of VHS have generated a spirit of good will and cooperation among fellow students. In the fall of 1910 the Debating Club was formed. The High School Music Club first came into being in 1916; and a sister club, the Octette was organized in 1929 On St. Valentines Day, 1926, Hi-Y was formed with an initial membership of 15. The Dramatics Club, organized in 1930, was formed mainly to promote interest in all phases of public speaking

The Band, which had been completely reorganized in 1929 received its first uniform in November, 1931. It consisted of a green broadcloth cape fined with white satin, white trousers and skirts, and green military caps. The Girl's Athletic Association and the Latin Club were both created in 1930. Y-teens, formerly known as the Girl Reserves, has been a part of VHS since 1929. The club is associated with the YWCA and tries to promote christian ideals

The Valpost, formerly known as the "Valparaiso Hi-Life," was first established in 1929. The Student Council, formed in 1944, was originally another organization known as the Recreation Council. The Booster Club of 1946 is today known as Pep Club. The club's goal is the same — to instill pride in VHS. In 1947 VHS saw the beginning of the Varsity Club which consisted only of varsity letter winners. The Future Teachers of America was organized in 1948 under the direction of Miss Audry Shauer to help solve the problem of lack of teachers.

In 1950 a Gymnastics Club was formed.

The activities of VHS have offered the students challenges and changes. The organizations have advanced to the stage where there is an activity for practically every student interest.

According to the Valpost of December 5, 1930, we find an interesting fact about the class of 1876. Their difference from other classes is marked by their failure to graduate at the proper time. Various reasons have been given but the most interesting one was revealed when we learned that the students who were to receive their diplomas in 1876 desired to graduate with friends who were in the class of 1875. Although they had not completed their entire courses, the faculty granted them permission to be among the fortunate ones in 1875 to be rewarded graduation. Hence, we have no record for that year which was the centennial of America's freedom.

According to the 1919 Valenian, the Class of 1919 realized their fondest hope in their Junior year, when they gave the first Valparaiso High School Prom for the graduating class of 1918. An invitation was extended to the entire student body. Each Junior and Senior was given the privilege of inviting one guest outside. The Prom was held at the Armory, which was decorated in the High School colors — green and white. The music was furnished by Cleopatra's Jazz Band.

The first Valenian staff of 1917 works feverishly to meet a deadline. The class of 1917 established Valenian as the permanent name for the annual

Sports take shape and change

The trophy case stands in the east hall of VHS in 1938

Athletics have long been an important part of VHS. Track began in 1905 and VHS acquired its first baseball team in 1908. In the spring of 1915 under the leadership of William Schenck, the high school tennis team was organized. The Valparaiso High School Athletic Association began in 1916 after Professor Jesse appointed a committee to draw up a constitution, and on October 23, 1916, the first meeting was held. In 1926 golf was introduced into the sports program. All sports except football and track were dropped in 1943 because of the war and transportation difficulties. When the war ended all sports resumed. Today, VHS enjoys a tremendous variety of athletic activities under the guidance of experienced leaders.

And now. . . Valpo High 1966

"Good morning, coaches' office."

Fifty years of growing, changing, maturing, and meeting challenges has developed Valparaiso High School into what it is today — a well-organized institution of learning, striving to encourage in its students a curiosity to think, to learn, and to challenge. The student life revolves around this purpose.

1966 was felt, heard, and seen at VHS. Fashions were the most obvious changes. The "Total Look" lasted out the entire year. Legs and tops matched and clashed. Penny loafers shoed many VHS students. Girls' and boys' hair grew to lengths never before imagined — the straighter, the better. Also 1966 was here in words, thoughts, and spirit. The problems concerned with civil rights, war in Vietnam, protest marches, the race in space — these were felt, discussed, and analyzed. Thus, VHS embraced not only the 1966 "Look" in fashions, but also the spirit, as well

Adding to the new look at VHS in 1966 was the construction of offices and a study hall in what was formerly the inner courtyard. The work was completed in late fall and these rooms were in use during second semester. The Warren Homes Company of Lansing, Michigan, designed and engineered the construction. For the first time, air conditioning was installed in the school. Due to lack of proper ventilation, six adjacent rooms were also aircooled. Summer classes are being scheduled in these rooms as much as possible. Carpeting in the offices, another new idea, was installed as an experiment to reduce noise. Grouping together all the various offices of the high school provided for a more efficient organization.

Description of VHS — active

Football fans enter the gate to Boucher Field

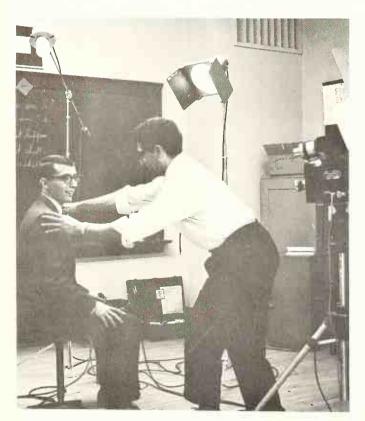

VHS is a school on the go. From the first shrill ring of the 8:00 bell to the exit of the last student, VHS is alive with activity of all sorts. Whether it is digging in the library for reference material, cramming for a test, painting posters for Pep Club, singing in Choir, wrapping charity gifts for Y-Teens, shooting free throws during lunch, screaming for two points at a basketball game, snapping pictures for Valpost, gathering information for Valenian, keeping in shape for sports, constructing scenery for a play, building a radio in Science Club, performing a concert with the band, or sorting mail in the office —these make the students of VHS a picture of ACTION.

Glimpses of the daily routine

"We want the Vikings - right now!"

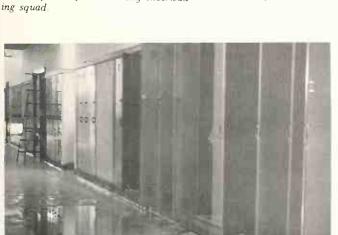

As a person is characterized by his many expressions, emotions, and habits, so is a school such as VHS. Students remember most vividly the daily routine, marked by sudden surprise, happiness, hope, tension, sadness, or sometimes tragedy Each student will have his own memories: the never-ending caravan of students parading in the front halls each morning, the mad dash to class, the surprise of a pop quiz, the 10.30 hunger pangs, the relaxation of lunchtime, the satisfaction of a high grade, the foreverness of seventh hour, the exhaustion of another busy day, and the expectancy of a new day to come.

Masquerade and minstrel characterize

"Yo-o, heave-ho, those Horsemen gotta go." Chanting this over and over, a group of senior girls tramp to morning classes in the masquerade of a long horse. Unofficially, this began the Homecoming celebration

Homecoming

The senior girls began the 1965 Homecoming celebration on the morning of September 24th by galloping to school under the masquerade of a block-long horse chanting "those Horsemen gotta go." Throughout the school day enthusiasm rose for the big game. In the afternoon a school convocation was held for the annual Senior Skit, organized by Marge Burrus. During the skit the "unmatched" Valparaiso Vikings, portrayed by senior girls, downed the "ill-fated" Horsemen. A minstrel show highlighted the half-time entertainment. At this time the following senior boys: Don Garbison, Dean Hemmersbach, Jim Siewin, Don Birch, Dave Simmons, Paul Frye, and Gib Neuner mimicked the Homecoming Court by dressing in girl's formals. With the singing of the school song, the pep session ended leaving each student eagerly anticipating a Homecoming victory.

The Valparaiso Vikings succeeded in holding the Horace Mann team down to a 6-6 tie after a hard fought battle.

Shortly after the game the 1965 Homecoming Dance sponsored by Pep Club was held in Boucher Gymnasium "Moonlight and Roses" provided the mood for an unforgettable evening. At the magic hour of 11:00 the Homecoming Court was announced by Student Council President Jim Siewin. Each girl walked slowly to the center of the floor and then was escorted by senior members of the football team: Tom Eiler, George Sigler, Jerry Peck, Gene Caryer, Geoff Jones, Ken Kemmerer, Jim Phillips, Rich Raines, Gerard Charpentier, Chuck Conover, Ren Armstrong, and Terry Moore. Suspense vanished with the announcement of Judy Malasto, Princess and Tish Platt, Queen. Co-captains Terry Herman and Jim Wellsand escorted the Queen to her golden throne. As Tish was crowned, each co-captain bestowed on her the traditional coronation kiss. After the coronation, couples danced to music by the Exiles.

Making policies for superior education

Mr G Warren Phillips, superintendent of community schools, puts into effect the policies determined by the Board of Education

The Board of Education determined the policies to best promote a high standard of public education. The Board was appointed by the City Council for four years with the offices being rotated annually. The positions held this year were as follows: Dr. D.P. LaCount — president; Mr. Joseph Durand — vice president; Mr. Mann Spitler, Jr. — secretary; Mr. Preston Platt — treasurer; Mrs. Gene Myers — member; and Mr. G. Warren Phillips — superintendent. A major problem confronting the Board this year was relating the school activities to some of the programs of the federal government.

Mr. G. Warren Phillips, superintendent, was a general supervisor of schools. His busy schedule involved taking care of the financial program, overseeing buildings and grounds, and advising on such matters as personnel and curriculum. He also represented the school system in all public relations. Mr. Phillips, in the role of executive officer of the Board of Education was responsible for carrying out the policies determined by this group.

Piles of rubbish accumulated through the summer construction work are scattered on the north lawn. The construction of offices and a study hall within the former high school courtyard was an important decision of the school board.

Leadership through exacting standards

MR KING TELLE. Principal

MR C. J. DOANE: Assistant Principal

Several new faces were recognized in the principal's and assistant principal's offices this year. Mr. C.J. Doane, a former teacher here at the high school, returned to fill the post of assistant principal. Mr. Doane took charge of attendance, season ticket sales, and all extra-curricular functions. Mrs. Chenoweth, another new addition to the staff, served as Mr. Doane's secretary. She was in charge of attendance records and general bookkeeping.

Mr. King Telle in his twentieth year as Valparaiso High School principal, was the administrator of all school activities — academic, social, and athletic. His many responsibilities included planning the curricular programs and teacher assignments. He also took charge of all extra-curricular activities. Assisting Mr. Telle in the role of secretary was Mrs. Betty Price. Mrs. Price's work involved keeping permanent records of all students and dealing with college transcripts.

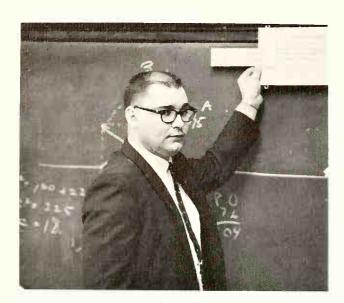

Mr. Thomas Roberts, director of building and maintenance and part-time co-ordinator of vocational education, supervised the construction work in the high school courtyard and at an addition at Hayes-Leonard Elementary. Mr. Roberts also was the supervisor of the bus transportation for the Valparaiso Community Schools. This year three new buses were added to the transportation system making a total of fifteen. Mr. Roberts has been with the administration department for ten years.

Mrs. Grace Rickard and Mrs. Isabelle Froenicke efficiently dealt with the many secretarial duties involved in keeping the administration office running smoothly.

MRS BETTY PRICE: Registrar and secretary to Mr. Telle.

WILLIAM L. BAILEY: Physics, Science Club; Football

The 1965 Valparaiso High School faculty continued to upgrade the standards of education. The faculty was increased from thirty-six to thirty-eight members this year. There were nine new faces on the staff. Some of these teachers have had previous teaching experience in other communities such as Mrs. Heckman, who taught in Iowa, and Mrs. Callis, who taught in nearby Chesterton. Other new teachers came here directly from college such as Mr. Loomis from Indiana State and Miss Conners from Purdue. The other new teachers were: Miss Lucas, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Butt, Mrs. McQuillin, and Mr. Pollock.

One of the finest honors coming to a member of the faculty, Mr. Williams, was his election as president of the Indiana Classroom Teachers Association. Mr. Williams takes office in June, 1966.

Directing youths to worthwhile careers

Throughout a student's high school years, he must continually add to his knowledge. But where is this knowledge to be directed after graduation? The guidance department was concerned with this phase of a student's development

This year, counselors met with each of 913 students to discuss class schedule, grade standing, and career planning. The guidance department made available to the students information pertaining to opportunities in universities, colleges, and technical schools. Another responsibility of this department was the administering of preliminary and college board tests. For example, on November 6 they supervised a special scholarship college board test sponsored by the Indiana State Scholarship Commission. For the students interested in a higher education, the guidance department arranged for representatives from various colleges and universities to come and speak. The guidance staff this year included. Mr. Henkel — head guidance counselor, Mr. Hildreth, Mrs. Bauer, Mr. Sweet, and Mr. Ciciora.

Surrounded by laboratory equipment, Paul Seelig and John Tverdik carefully follow instructions given in the experiment manual. Lab sessions, supplementing study in the text, are held once a week in Mr William's classes

Math and science broaden in scope

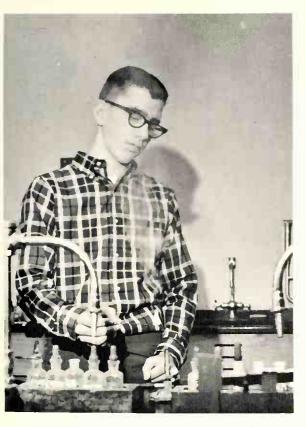

In Chemistry 3, Paul Frye and Steve Seelig learn to use the delicate analytical balance, which is used for very precise measurements. This year two of these balances were donated to the chemistry department by Valparaiso University

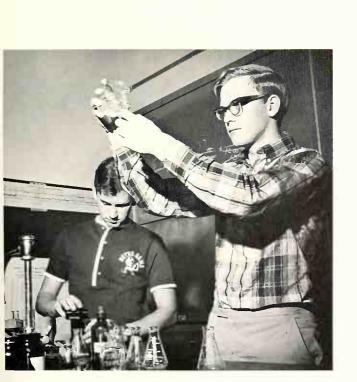

The mathematics and science departments this year offered the students a wide variety of challenging courses.

In the science department, physics, chemistry, physical science, and general science courses were offered. In Chemistry 1 and 2, Mr. Chenoweth's classes used the Chem Study text, a mathematical approach which emphasized problemsolving and lab study. This was the second year for this approach. Chemistry 3 was offered again this year for those students who wished to pursue chemistry as their major in college. The modern chemistry and physics laboratories offered the students a chance to learn through experimentation.

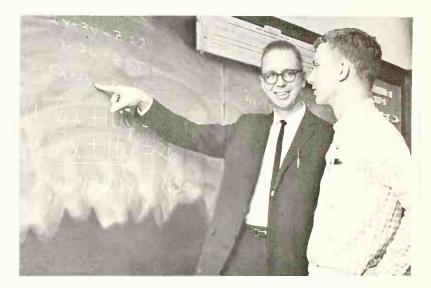

The mathematics department continued its efforts again this year to upgrade math courses for the gifted students. Honors geometry, honors algebra, and honors senior math were offered to students who were mathematically-minded. Instruction in regular courses appealed to the other students.

Keeping abreast

of the changing world

Jill Short and Cindy Dauberman point out the British Channel to classmates in U.S. history

The social studies department of Valparaiso High School offered courses in world history, U.S. history, civics, economics, and sociology.

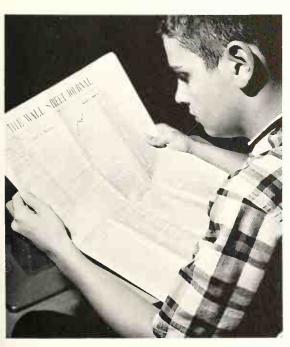

The fields of world and U.S. history emphasized the study of men and nations — from the earliest cavemen to the last presidential election. For a better understanding of the cold war, world history students studied the philosophy of communism. In civics, students were taught principles of the U.S. government. Current events in the nation and throughout the entire world also formed a major part of the discussion. Group research projects on individual state governments kept students busy during the semester. Economic trends and the theory of a sound economy were discussed in economics class. Students put this knowledge to work by investigating corporations and "investing" $10,000 in stocks. Human beings and their behavior proved to be an absorbing topic for sociology students. From this study, individuals were able to make adjustments in their families and to better themselves as citizens.

Mr Edquist supervises a panel discussion in sociology class concerning the pros and cons of steady dating. Panel discussions such as these helped students to express their own ideas.

In US history Denise Weddle and Robert Law run the miniature Tom Thumb steam engine along its tiny track—The engine, donated by Mr Joe Urschel in 1932, demonstrated a phase in the history of transportation development

Laurel Barile discusses with the other civic students the value of the basic freedoms granted citizens by the Constitution. In civics the constitution was one of the first undertakings, since it forms a basis for the study of our present government structure.

Striving for more fluent expression

Greg MacDonald addresses his fellow students in speech class. After conquering initial fright, students worked to use facial expressions and hand gestures to put their ideas across more emphatically.

In academics this year, an emphasis was again placed on the English departments. Students were urged to take at least six semesters of English — speech, composition, or literature courses offered

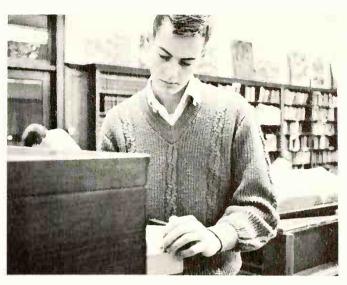

Sophomore English courses emphasized word usage, rhetoric, and mechanics of theme composition. Sophomores found their literature course dealing with a general appreciation of all forms of literature, including a detailed study of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.

Juniors were required to take either composition or speech. In the speech classes, students were taught the art of public speaking and debate. Composition courses taught students the basics of creative writing. Junior literature dealt with the development of American literature.

Senior English courses were geared to the college-bound student. English fundamentals and expository writing were emphasized in English 8. Students taking English 7 studied English literature, with an emphasis on the history of ideas. Students also learned to use the library as a study aid, while working on the "ism's", a major project in which the students compiled definitions of philosophy terms.

In English 7, Rick Meyers explains the symbols of heraldry to the class Oral reports by the students concerning English social history provided an introduction to the study of English literature

Foreign language enrollment up

Sue German and Jamie Koenig record Spanish dialogues and then listen for mistakes in pronounciation. The tape recorders have been used steadily since they were installed in 1963

This year more interest was developed toward foreign languages. Classes in German, Latin and Spanish have grown in total enrollment from 261 to 295, an increase of 13%. For the first time, a fourth year Spanish class was started, also second year German was taught in the 1965 summer school.

Besides learning to speak, write, and translate languages, students gathered knowledge concerning the country itself—its government, its customs, and its people. Films were regularly shown, some with foreign dialogue, to give a glimpse of foreign life. Translating foreign novels provided a break in grammar exercises. Spanish classes read Una Noche de Lima (A Night in Lima) and German classes Kleider Machen Leute (Clothes Make the Man). Making German potato pancakes was an interesting sidelight of the third year German class. Libertad Herandez, who moved here from Venezula, enlightened the senior Spanish class on the shades of difference between Spanish and English word meanings. Latin students discovered Julius Caesar and the Gallic Wars.

Third year German students Jim Phillips, Mary Heinold, and Marge Burrus prepare potatoes for a recipe of potato pancakes. The students had to follow directions directly from the German copy printed in the text Lesen und Denken

Mrs Green, German instructor, adjusts the range to the correct temperature for frying potato pancakes. She arranged for the class to experiment in the food lab, a rather irregular break from the usual schedule.

Speed and efficiency in business skills

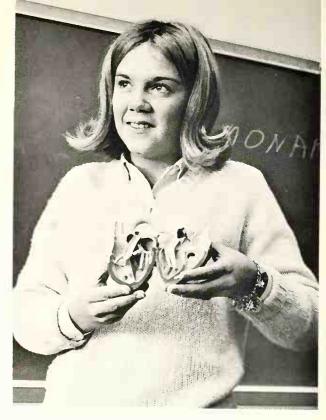

A baokkeeping student works through a study guide concerning business transactions. Study guides accompanying each chapter test reading and understanding of the text.

For the students planning a business career, the high school offered bookkeeping, shorthand, typing, business English, and business law.

In bookkeeping, students learned to "balance books" for an imaginary business. Each student purchased a business kit which contained checkbooks, ledgers, and other items necessary for the bookkeeping cycle. The four volume Gregg's Shorthand texts were used in four semesters of shorthand. First semester shorthand emphasized the learning of characters and brief forms. Shorthand 2, 3, and 4 emphasized speed and transcription. Business English students learned correct, upto-date English for both everyday and business usage. Typing was vital for business and college-bound students. Students learned forms for business letters and manuscripts. Office practice was a clerical course emphasizing the various machines that are found in the modern office. Sixty office practice students made use of two small manual rotary calculators, one comptometer, one transcribing machine, and two adding machines. Business law trained students in the legal aspects of business.

Developing sound body and creativity

Katherine Delmerico reads instructions for making a sling while Sam Davis tries out the method on Charles Noonan

Providing students with a better understanding of the human body and its functions and teaching necessary rules of safety constituted the main objectives of the health and safety course. Students were required to keep a daily notebook containing the information and diagrams given in the lectures. These notebooks were found to be useful to have as a guide to safety rules. Dissections of the heart, lungs, and joints were performed to show more vividly the body parts. Knowledge of safety rules and good hygiene is very important and thus, the health and safety course was a requirement for all students.

A more cultural aspect of student life was emphasized in the art appreciation course. First semester art requirements included sand paintings and a collection of monoprints. Monoprints involved inking a glass plate, placing paper over this, and sketching the picture on top. Students were also encouraged to work in oils. Second semester dealt with structural work such as wood sculpture and metal figurines.

Vocational arts build individual abilities

Hunched over a drawing board, eyes only inches from their sketches, industrial art students complete their draft of a machine plan

The industrial arts department of VHS offered the student courses in architectural drawing, machine drawing, general shop, and advanced shopwork. One of the more difficult projects in architectural drawing concerned the planning and design ng of a house, complete with blueprints. In the machine shop, the boys learned how to operate various types of high-powered machinery under the watchful eye of Mr. Pollock from McGills Manufacturing, who served as temporary instructor.

Girls interested in food nutrition, food preparation, clothing construction, home nursing, and child development enrolled in the home economics department. For the first time, two hour preparation labs were held twice a week. This gave the girls sufficient time to prepare an entire meal. In clothing construction, girls advanced from simple dresses to formals and coats. Girls in home management furnished their own dream home, putting an emphasis on kitchen planning

Proficiency in athletics and at the wheel

Boys in physical education form a pyramid, a stunt done in tumbling

The department of physical education hoped this year to instill in its participants a feeling of sportsmanship and yet, develop in them an ability in a certain field. The boys' gym classes had fifteen fields in which to participate. Mr. Sweet wanted to stress individual sports, such as tumbling and gymnastics. Then the individual abilities were incorporated into team work, such as basketball and soccer. Girls' gym classes also revolved around this same theme — individual development. Mrs. Frost planned extra activities for those who excelled in specific areas.

Six driver training classes, each containing sixteen students, learned how to become defensive drivers, to heed the rules of the road, and to respect the pedestrian's right-of-way. Under the watchful eye of Mr. Stokes, each student drove six hours in a new 1966 Plymouth Fury. This experience and the knowledge gained through movies and the driving manual developed in the students good driving habits and equally important, a sense of responsibility. Another aspect of the course was the learning of car mechanics and emergency procedures. The grades earned in driving and those earned in the classroom both had to be passing for a student to earn his driver training permit. The grade earned in this course, however, could not be counted toward honor roll points

Choir officers for 1965-1966 are. Judy Malasto — vice president, Jake Tarner — librarian, John Gingerich — president, Chuck Scott — treasurer, Laurel Lange — accompanist, and Mr. Butt — director

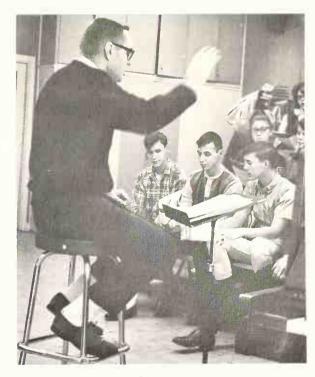

Choir this year was offered during both sixth and seventh periods. The newly organized Girls Glee Club met during sixth period, and the concert choir met during seventh period. Choir was under the direction of Mr. Bernard Butt for the first time.

In January the choir participated in the Solo-Ensemble Contest and in April they attended the NISBOVA Contest. In past years, the choir has earned seven first place awards at this contest.

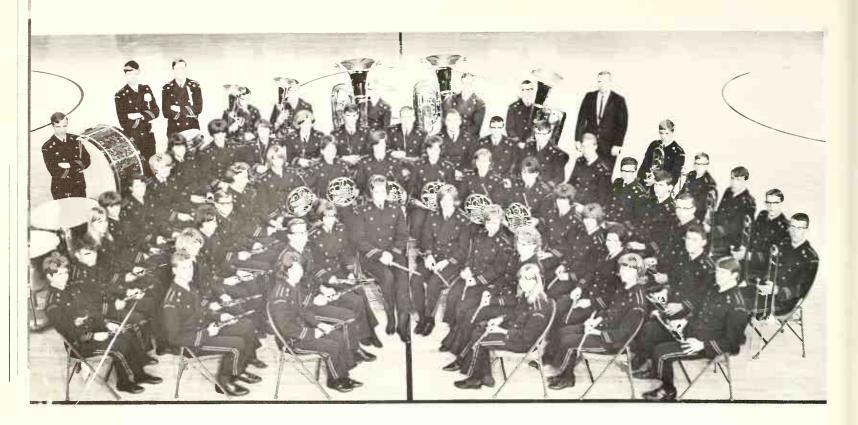

Choir members again this year auditioned to be in the Carolers, a "swing" group which performed for various service clubs throughout the year. During the Christmas season, the Carolers invoked the true Christmas spirit in everyone by caroling through the halls. In collaboration with the band, the concert choir presented their Christmas Concert on December 14. The new Girls Glee Club participated in most of the activities of the concert choir. In April the choir presented a spring concert and in June they honored the 1966 graduating class by singing at Commencement.

Under the capable direction of Mr. Robert G. Miller the Valparaiso High School Band had a very busy and successful year.

Starting with the first week of school, the Marching Vikings entertained the football crowd during half-time with shows of "James Bond" and "Broadway Musicals." They also participated in Purdue University's Band Day and the Valparaiso University Homecoming Parade. At the close of marching season, auditions were held and the concert and reserve bands were formed

For the benefit of raising funds, the Band Boosters sponsored the annual Ham Dinner held in November at Thomas Jefferson Junior High School. Two public concerts were performed this year. In the spring band members took honors at both the Solo and Ensemble Contest and the Band Contest. A new experience for the sophomore and junior members was a concert tour to seve al neighboring schools. The last public function for this year's band was the concert for the school convocation.

and administration

Student Council Officers: Rich Raines, vice-president; Jim Siewin, president; Kathie Mitchell, secretary; Bill Anderson, treasurer.

During the second week of school, a homeroom was held for the purpose of electing representatives to the Student Council. Each representative was to attend all Student Council meetings and to raise suggestions for the improvement of student relationship with the administration and school regulations.

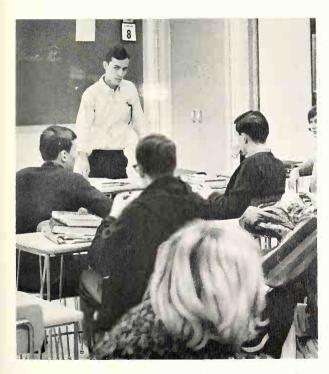

This year Student Council worked steadily to achieve some of these goals. A project committee was appointed and investigated needed improvements around the school. The school constitution was reexamined and an amendment was added concerning the scholastic standing of cheerleaders. Petitions for all social functions required approval by the Student Council. Elections for class officers were supervised by this body.

Some suggestions considered by the Student Council this year were: the installment of an apple machine, the purchase of a victory symbol, and the placement of clocks in all classrooms.

This year's officers were Jim Siewin — president; Rich Raines — vice president; Kathie Mitchell — secretary; and Bill Anderson — treasurer.

Boy's pep section gets in the act

VHS had a new addition to its cheering squad this year. Besides the ten girls annually chosen by the student body, there were four boys who volunteered for the task. They too, were required to maintain a "C" grade average to be cheerleaders. As their duty demanded, both the girl and boy cheerleaders practiced often to continually improve their techniques and to introduce new cheers to lead the pep section in organized yells to encourage our teams to victory.

The Pep Band greatly contributed to the atmosphere of all home basketball games and pep sessions. The fifteen boys that made up the section were chosen according to ability by Mr. Miller, band director. The band played pop music, marches, show tunes, and other spirited songs which proved popular with the student body.

Dennis Southers and Bob Richmond lead the cheers of the boys' pep section. This was the first year for boy cheerleaders.

"To win with dignity and to lose graciously" at all athletic functions summarized the purpose of the Valparaiso High School Pep Club. With this motto in mind, Pep Club strived to encourage a high degree of school spirit in their many activities

This year the officers began club functions during the summer by organizing a bake sale to raise funds. During football season the club sponsored the first big event of the year, the Homecoming Dance where the queen and her court were presented to the student body. Pep Club's white shirt section was regularly seen at all home basketball games. For the tourneys, a shaker session was organized. Pep Club also arranged for buses to away football and basketball games. At the Valpo Relays, students voted on the Spring Beauty Court, which later was presented at another Pep Club sponsored activity, the Spring Beauty Dance. The annual banquet marked the end of the 1965-1966 Pep Club year. Medals and charms were awarded and the newly elected officers were installed.

The annual Christmas Dance, co-sponsored by Valpost and Hi-Y, was held on December 18, 1965. Although the outside weather was anything but wintry, inside Boucher Gymnasium one hundred and twenty couples danced in "Fantasies of Frost" to music provided by the Glen Martin Combo. Large, lighted pine trees, flocked in white and decorated with little elves, were situated in the center of the floor while huge "snow drifts" stretched along the walls. Deer "froliced" under a starry sky. A lighted banner proclaimed the theme "Fantasies of Frost." The winter wonderland atmosphere put everyone in a christmasy mood. This annual semi-formal dance was co-chairmened by Lynda Miller and Tish Platt of the Valpost staff.

Y-Teens endeavored to build a fellowship of girls devoted to the task of serving people of all races, religions, and nationalities. The annual Mixing Bowl held on September 14 introduced Y-Teens functions to the incoming sophomores. The new members were later inducted into the club during a candlelight ceremony on October 19 in the school cafeteria. This year Y-Teens baked birthday cakes for those at the County Home, sent canned goods to the Welfare Department, made toys for Vale Day children and had a party for the children at the Shults-Lewis home. Y-Teens sponsored a Ski Party at Ben Franklin Junior High School on November 12. This took the place of the Masquerade Dance held previously. TB stamp sales and a bake sale raised money for charity. A highlight of the year was the King of Hearts Dance at which the King and his courtiers, senior boys elected by Y-Teen members, were featured. The Mother-Daughter Banquet in the spring climaxed the end of the year with the installation of next year's officers.

The King of Hearts Dance, held on February 12 at Benjamin Franklin Junior High School, was the main money-making project of Y-Teens this year. Carrying out the Y-Teen idea of service to the community, the organization donated $100, the largest amount ever given, to the Heart Fund. The dance was held from 8:30 to 11:00. In a romantic background of hearts and cupids, the couples danced to the music of The Beachcombers.

The highlight of the evening was at 9:30 when Betty Waldschmidt announced the King of Hearts Court: Jim Phillips, Gib Neuner, Steve Seelig, Tom Eiler, Paul Frye, Prince Jim Siewin, and King Gene Carver. Their escorts were Pam Cowan. Ways and Means Chairman; Candy Decker, Senior Board Member; Lenore Koenig, Program Chairman; Gale Zoller. This work was a fine example of the services performed to donate the members' time and services for the public welfare of the school and community. As a school service, Hi-Y co-sponsored the Christmas dance, put on sock hops, organized the Hi-Y and faculty basketball game, and held a swimming party.

Hi-Y also supplied ushers for the home basketball games from its junior and senior members. The ushers were in charge of seating spectators and distributing programs. They were also responsible to keep people off the court during half-times.

Valpost staff, under the excellent leadership of Mrs. Inman, had another successful year in journalism. Editor-in-Chief Larry Dague efficiently co-ordinated the activities of the other editors. Craig Harmon took care of all business transactions. Timely editorials written by Larry Dague and Mark Cole expressed the views of the students and faculty. Michael Bartholomew edited all news articles. Jim Siewin, Don Vandrey, and Tom Nicklas were in charge of the sports department. Features were created by Ilse Stager. Lynda Miller and Denise Weddle wrote a gossip column concerning the humerous activities of the students. The year was climaxed by the announcement of the 1966-1967 staff at the annual Valenian-Valpost banquet.

"Fifty Years of Challenge and Change"—this year our theme was handed to us on a silver platter for this was the fiftieth volume of Valenian. The staff, composed of seven editors, worked steadily to prepare a volume which would commemorate not only VHS 1966 but also the fifty preceding years of VHS school activity. Mary Ellen Fairfield, editor-in-chief, with the guidance of Mr. Roy Ellis Brown, supervised the work. She guided the efforts of all the other editors into six channels. This year's photo editor, Abbie Winerman, caught the look and spirit of 1966 VHS in candid shots of the students. Beverly Tuthill helped draw and arrange the pictures and copy on the page. Donna Clendenin, layout editor, had the job of pasting up all the parts of the page to be sent to the printers. Mary Heinold wrote all body copy, heads, and captions for all the pictures. Shirley Tuthill, narrative editor, took charge of the section on the history of VHS. Mary Meyer took care of all business transactions. Working together, these seven editors published this volume for the students as the story of VHS 1966.

Public Appearance Club formed

Cappy Peller uses o dry mount press to fix pictures to hardboard while Amy Nevitt tacks the pictures in preparation for the process.

In 1966 a new organization was born to VHS: the Public Appearance Club. It was divided into two sections, drama and debate. One of the purposes of the drama section was to put on short plays and attempt a full length production. Group discussions, speech contests, and debates were planned by the debate group. Each section usually worked independently with each having their own set of offices, however, a central committee was set up for the whole club to hold joint meetings.

Student librarians, supervised by Mr. Gardin — head librarian, helped operate an efficient library. These librarians not only wanted to work, but also showed a real interest in the functions of the library. Among other things, the work of the librarians included cataloging, preparation of the books for the shelves, pasting of pockets and covers, typing of cards, and reading of book reviews. Their purpose was to serve the student body and the faculty with both reading and reference material.

Cadet teachers gain experience

Mr. William Hodge, regional director of the National Educators Association, chats with Mr. Williams and Paula Domke after the FTA meeting. Mr. Hodge spoke to the future teachers on "Looking Ahead."

To promote an interest in teaching and to give insight into some of the aspects of the profession were the objectives of FTA, the Future Teachers Association. FTA presented to its members guest speakers and also conducted group discussions. The speakers included Mrs. Bauer, a faculty member here at VHS, Mrs. Woizie, from Vale Day School, and Mr. Carpenter, a speech and hearing specialist. FTA was open for membership to any one interested in teaching and was required of all cadet teachers.

Cadet teachers gained experience by working in grade school classrooms. An hour each day for one semester of the senior year was spent in the grade school classrooms of this area. Half of this time was spent in grades one, two, and three, and the other half in grades four, five, and six. The cadet teachers helped the adult teachers grade papers and on occasion, even took charge of the class. Through this experience, these girls were given a taste of what lies ahead in the career of teaching.

GAA promotes gymnastics

With a little help, a GAA member performs a handstand on the uneven parallels.

Increased interest in gymnastics made this sport available as a new activity in the GAA program. The student body was made aware of this when GAA arranged for the Portage Gymnastic team to perform at a student convocation. VHS helped to further the project by purchasing a new ruter board, horse, and parallel bars. Several girls trained for weeks on the equipment and were able to participate in the State gymnastics meet. Other sports on the GAA program were: fight-football, speedball, and basketball. Telegraphic bowling meets with other schools and play days were also held.

Social events sponsored by GAA included an initiation, the holiday Big Sister-Little Sister party, and the Sadie Hawkins dance held in the spring. The announcement of awards and new officers at the GAA banquet marked the end of a busy, successful year.

Mr. William Bailey, Mr. Roger Williams, and the twelve members of Science Club decided to divide the organization into two parts. Mr. Bailey's branch was concerned with electronics. The club purchased many electronic kits, among them a twelve-in-one kit, which can be used as twelve various electronic instruments. The members built and used a walkietalkie. They also discussed the "ways" and "whys" of electricity and explored the subject further through experiments. Mr. Williams headed the other section. They spent one period a day in the office, taking care of minor incidents and reporting all major injuries and illnesses. They called parents to take the students home when necessary. All girls in advance typing could serve as students secretaries. They helped teachers correct work, typed up tests and worksheets, and did various other tasks. Average or above average students were allowed to help in the offices. These girls did general office work such as filing, running errands, and making announcements. On October 30, 1965, at the South Grove Course, Viking Don Vandrey with a timing of 9:27.3 broke the tape and thus became Valparaiso's first State Cross Country Champion. This achievement topped off a highly successful season for the Viking Harriers. In the conference competition the varsity runners placed second with a record of 14-1. In dual meets the fast-footed boys ran away with 19 victories out of 22 contests.

The invitational meets' record was also something to be proud of. In the Fort Wayne South Invitational, the Harriers came in first out of nine participating schools; in Hobart, third out of 26; on the Shortridge course, ninth out of 23; and in LaPorte, seventh out of 21.

Valpo was also very well represented in the sectional meet, coming in third, and in the regional, sixth. Seniors Charles Comeford and Paul Frye were co-captains of the team under the training of Coach Evar Edquist.

Netters hit bottom

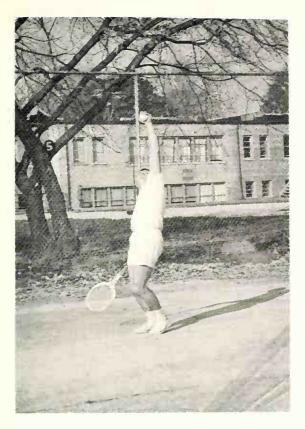

Showing classic form. Sam Davis volleys an overhead across the net

Tennis, a new sport at V.H.S. this fall, experienced a rocky first season. The tennis squad gained valuable experience, however, as they competed in nine school conferences. In thirteen outings, the Viking Netters were downed every match. Six of these matches were heartbreakingly close, however, with the opposition squeaking by with a 2-3 margin. Eight netters earned their letters this year: Leroy Stevenson, Edwyn Boyd, Charles Highlan, Martin Baumgaertner, Sam Davis, Jeffrey Meyerowitz, Larry Salberg, and Robert Delcourt. Mr. Chenoweth, varsity coach, feels that the experience gained in the season will be of great help to next year's squad

Gridders grind out victories. . .

"C'mon, guys, get him!" Tom Nicklas shouts from the sidelines for a tackle

Denny Marrell, injured in the second game of the season, misses the action on the field

VHS gridders, under the training of Mr. Tom Stokes, varsity coach, Mr. Robert Rhoda, and Mr. Jim Bailey, assistant coaches, had a spectacular season. Out of nine encounters, the Vikings had five victories, two draws, and two defeats. The Chesterton game was one of the key games of the season. The powerful Viking team trounced the Chesterton Trojans, the Calumet Conference Champs, 30-9. Another important game was the Hammond High clash, in which Valpo downed this high-rated state team 13-7. The Vikings succeeded in tying Gary Horace Mann, Northwest Conference Champs.

Under the "star" system set up by Mr. Stokes three years ago, a player gets a star for records in fumbles recovered, punts blocked, and passes intercepted. Senior Jim Wellsand, co-captain with Terry Herman, tied Dave Knott's previous record of six stars. The boy with the "golden arm," senior Gene Caryer, threw for fourteen touch-downs, the previous record being twelve. Caryer also came within two yards of the record for total yardage gained in passing. The tackling trophy was awarded to Ron Raelson, a junior.

The young gridders of the Junior Varsity, with the training of Mr. Sidney Reggie, head coach, and Mr. William Bailey, assistant, suffered only one loss the whole season, this being to Gary Horace Mann. Stars were earned by Tom Steinler, John Biggs, Jeff Williamson, and Bill Nielsen. Jim Stinnett received the tackling trophy for the greatest number of tackles, and Dave Garbison had the honor of scoring the most points.

Matmen try, but fail to win

A Viking "Grappler" struggles to put his opponent in a pinning combination

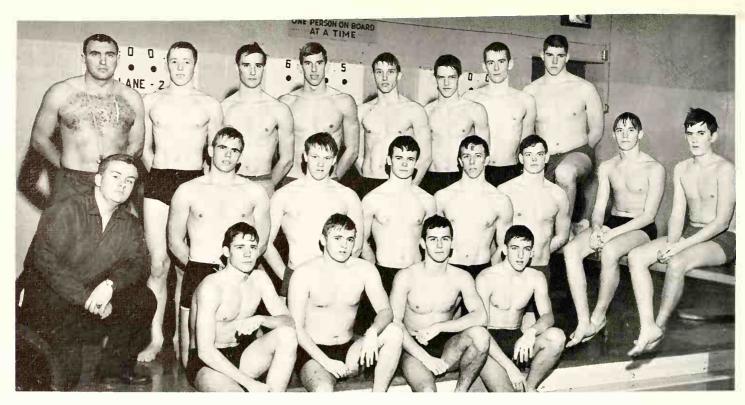

The VHS matmen under Coach Sidnev Reggie had a disappointing season. Because most of the team was inexperienced, the wrestlers did not win a meet; however, they came close to winning more than once. In conference meets, Geoff Jones took second in the 165 pound division and Mike Dykstra took second in the heavyweight division. In the sectionals, Tim Smurden captured third place in the 103 pound class. This year's Most Outstanding Wrestler was Geoff Jones, who scored highest in matches won, take-downs, pins, and total points scored. With this year's experience, next season promises much more.

The varsity swimming team coached by 1im Bailey had another great season with thirteen wins and only four losses. They were both conference and sectional champions and placed tenth in the state meet. For the second straight year Greg MacDonald placed first in the 50 yard free style, this year setting a new state record of 22.3 seconds, breaking his own previous record of 22.7 seconds. In the 100 breast stroke, Dick Swisher placed sixth. Other swimmers who set conference records include Mike McBain in diving with 325.4 points, Bill Higer in the 400 yard free style in 4:36.7 seconds, and Dick Swisher with both the sectional and conference records in the 100 yard breast stroke of 1:07 seconds and 1:06.7 seconds respectively. School records were set by nearly all of the swimmers. Out of twenty boys on the team this year only six will graduate. Every boy who held a record will be back next year

Vikes tie for Conference Champs

"Any questions, boys? Then may the best team win"

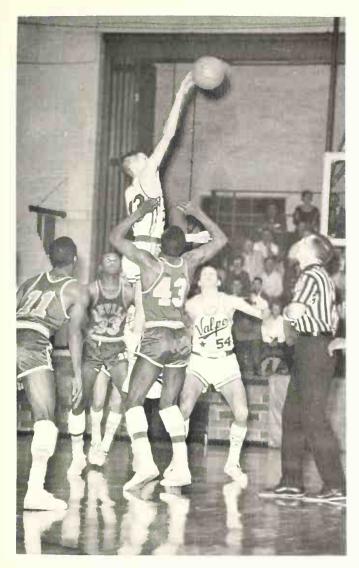

The 1965-1966 Vikings did what no other Valparaiso High School team had been able to do since 1933: win a conference championship in basketball. The Vikes tied Gary Froebel for the championship by winning ten of eleven conference games. They finished the season with an overall record of twenty wins and five losses. The fans will remember best the East Chicago Washington game, where the winning basket was sunk with only a few seconds left, and also the hard-fought and exciting Gary Froebel game, where the mighty Vikes overcame the Blue Devils 83-75. This winning team also won the Sectional Tournament for the tenth consecutive year and advanced to Regionals at Logansport. They defeated Knox 73-52 in the afternoon Regional game, but fell to Logansport 82-78 in the evening championship game. Dave Dogan, Paul Frye, Tom Hampson, and Steve Seelig were seniors on the team and all helped to provide the Viking fans with many thrills throughout the season. Coach Virgil Sweet will have eight boys from his tournament squad to mold into a team for next season.

Raines and Moore tie 1st for season

Kevin Guilford closely guards Bill Maudlin in the tense fourth quarter of an intramural play-off.

The Intramurals program tried to give any boy in the student body a chance to participate in athletics. Six years ago Mr. Dale Ciciora initiated the program and supervised it for two years. Mr. Glen Ellis, now in charge for the last four years, hoped to develop skill and sportsmanship in these boys. Intramurals started the first of December and continued until March 1. The boys played twice a week—every Tuesday night and Saturday afternoon. This year there were sixty-four boys in eight teams participating.

Seniors accept responsibilities

For the seniors, 1966 meant their final year at VHS. But graduation seemed far off in the future as seniors concentrated on the responsibilities at hand. "Isms," term papers, and research reports meant many nights up until midnight studying. Leading the organizations was an added responsibility. Seniors filled out hundreds of applications and forms concerning their future careers. But it was not all work. Exchanging senior cards and pictures, and putting on the Homecoming Skit, and measuring for caps and gowns — these were some of the traditional aspects of being a senior.

Leading the Senior Class were the officers: Dave Dogan, vice-president; Jim Phillips, president; Richard Meyers, secretary; and George Sigler, treasurer.

Juniors meet challenges

For the juniors, their second year at VHS meant digging in — digging into studies and activities. More time was needed for studies as courses grew more challenging. Juniors participated in many organizations: helping the officers, working on committees, and gaining the experience needed to assume the responsibilities of officers. Sports formed a large part of the activities as juniors strived for starring positions. The Junior -Senior Prom meant added responsibilities as decorations, advertising, ways to earn money, and other arrangements all had to be planned and taken care of.

Taking charge of the Prom were the Junior Class officers: Lenore Koenig, secretary; Bob Delcourt, treasurer; Jill Johnson, vice-president; and Gerald Bowman, president

Sophomores become adjusted

For the sophomores, high school was a completely new experience, frightening, vet exciting. Joining together for the first time as a complete class, sophomores met new friends and renewed old acquaintances. Slowly they adjusted to the high school routine, no longer being treated as junior high students, but as adults. New courses prodded and challenged their minds. They eagerly joined organizations and extracurricular activities and did their part of the work. Now they are prepared to meet the challenges of the junior year.

Officers of the sophomore class — Charlotte Peller, secretary; Steve Conover, vice-president; Charles Malasto, president; and Robert Gaynor, treasurer — chose the rings for their class.
